NORFOLK LOSES

In Fine Exhibition Roanoke Defeats Tars by 3 to 2 Score.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch ) Roanoke, Va., May 19.—The opening of the series with Norfolk to-day was Roanoke, 3 to 2. pretty exhibition, being featured by clever work and clean batting by both Jenkins, on the firing line for the locals, had a little the best of it. and this undoubtedly accounts for the victory of the Tigers. Norfolk players put up a great game in the field. In the fifth inning Acting Manager Mullaney sent in Otey to relieve Mc Carty, it being evident that McCarty was on the verge of having his measure taken to the Queen's taste. Otev stemmed the tide in great shape, and end. While the game possessed no special features, it was one of the prettiest seen here this year, the men playing in midseason form. In the eighth the visitors came within an acc of tying the score. Character are ace of tying the score, Changler sin gling and Jackson lining out a triple. with two men down.

Tiedman, however, flew out, and the agony was over. The score;

Did You See It Last Night?

O, my eyes are bleared with straining and my sight is on the blink, and my neck is sore with eraning and my brain can hardly think. I have camped with comet parties and observed the sun ascend as we sang of "Deep Sea Heartles" who like us were on the bend. I have warked anticipation till I was with fears beset; new I've seen the blooming comet, and I'll sleep to-night, you bet. I was told that it would hustle o'er the firmament at four, and I took my quart of Red Eye and cut out the usual snore. All my friends were calling wildly for the pristine, naked proof; I would give it (say it mildly); I proceeded to the roof. This has kept up till my waking is a dream with freworks fraught, and my dreams contain some items that old Dante never caught. I have whiled the hours with drinking, I have passed the time with cards, till my cerebellum's thinking wouldn't do for pots and shards. But I've seen the thing, thank gracious, the astronomers are right; Mr. Halley ain't mendacious, and I'll go to sleep to-night.

The instances cited show the lack of getting together and going after the results as teams should. A three-bagger with nobody to take advantage of it counts no more in the race for the pennant than a strike-out, and the team that is worked like a machine and goes after everything in sight is the team that is mighty near the top when the end comes.

Incidentally, Baker and Landgraff put up some of the fastest fielding that has been seen in Richmond for some time yesterday afternoon. Baker made a safe hit, and was properly rewarded with the glad hand. Landgraff picked up three or four chances with such speed that there was no hope for the runner. If the stocky second baseman would only use his head in the pinches he would increase his value at least 190 per centum and be one of the strong men in the league.

SLOW GAME AT BOSTON

Boston, Mass., May 19.—Boston won a slow game from Chicago to-day, 3 to 0. Cicotte kept the visitors' hits well scattered, while in the second inning the locals bunched four hits, with an error and scored all their runs. Parent's throwing hand was slightly injured by a line grive. Chicago's manager, Hugh Duffy, an old Boston and Providence player, was given a welcome, and presented with a floral piece by a delegation of Providence friends. The score:

mont Park to-day. The feature event was the Harlem selling stake, at one mile, and resulted in a surprise, Berkeley being returned the winner. Out of ten carded to start, only four faced the starter. The start was good. Berkeley and Question Mark raced head and head to the turn, when Norfeated Cleveland in an exciting ten- bitt moved up with a rush, and looked a sure winner, but at the furlong ning run was due to successive hits by pole he tired suddenly, and Berkeley Hemphill, Wolter, Chase and Laporte. drew away to win by two lengths. It was the first extra inning game lost Norbitt was a length before Pretend. With the unholy glare of an invisible comet shining over the diamond, and a bunch of spectators under the doubt as to whether it would be the last game of ball that this right little tight little world would over see, the last game of ball that this right little tight little world would over see, the score 2 to 0. Not that the Bugs were not working every wing and antennae to put the right individuals across the plate, for they were, but the Colts were working insight and dutsight, and there was nothing doing.

Revelle on form would have made a Parisian cloak establishment offer salary. There was really nothing to it but class. Of course, Rickert did clout a cruel two-bagger and create a squall for a short season, but the boy with the smile was on the job, and the hits that came belonged to the bachelor club. No two came together, and none was far enough to make the call boy trot to the score board with
